Ian Dunbar – the english prison governor behind the concept of dynamic security

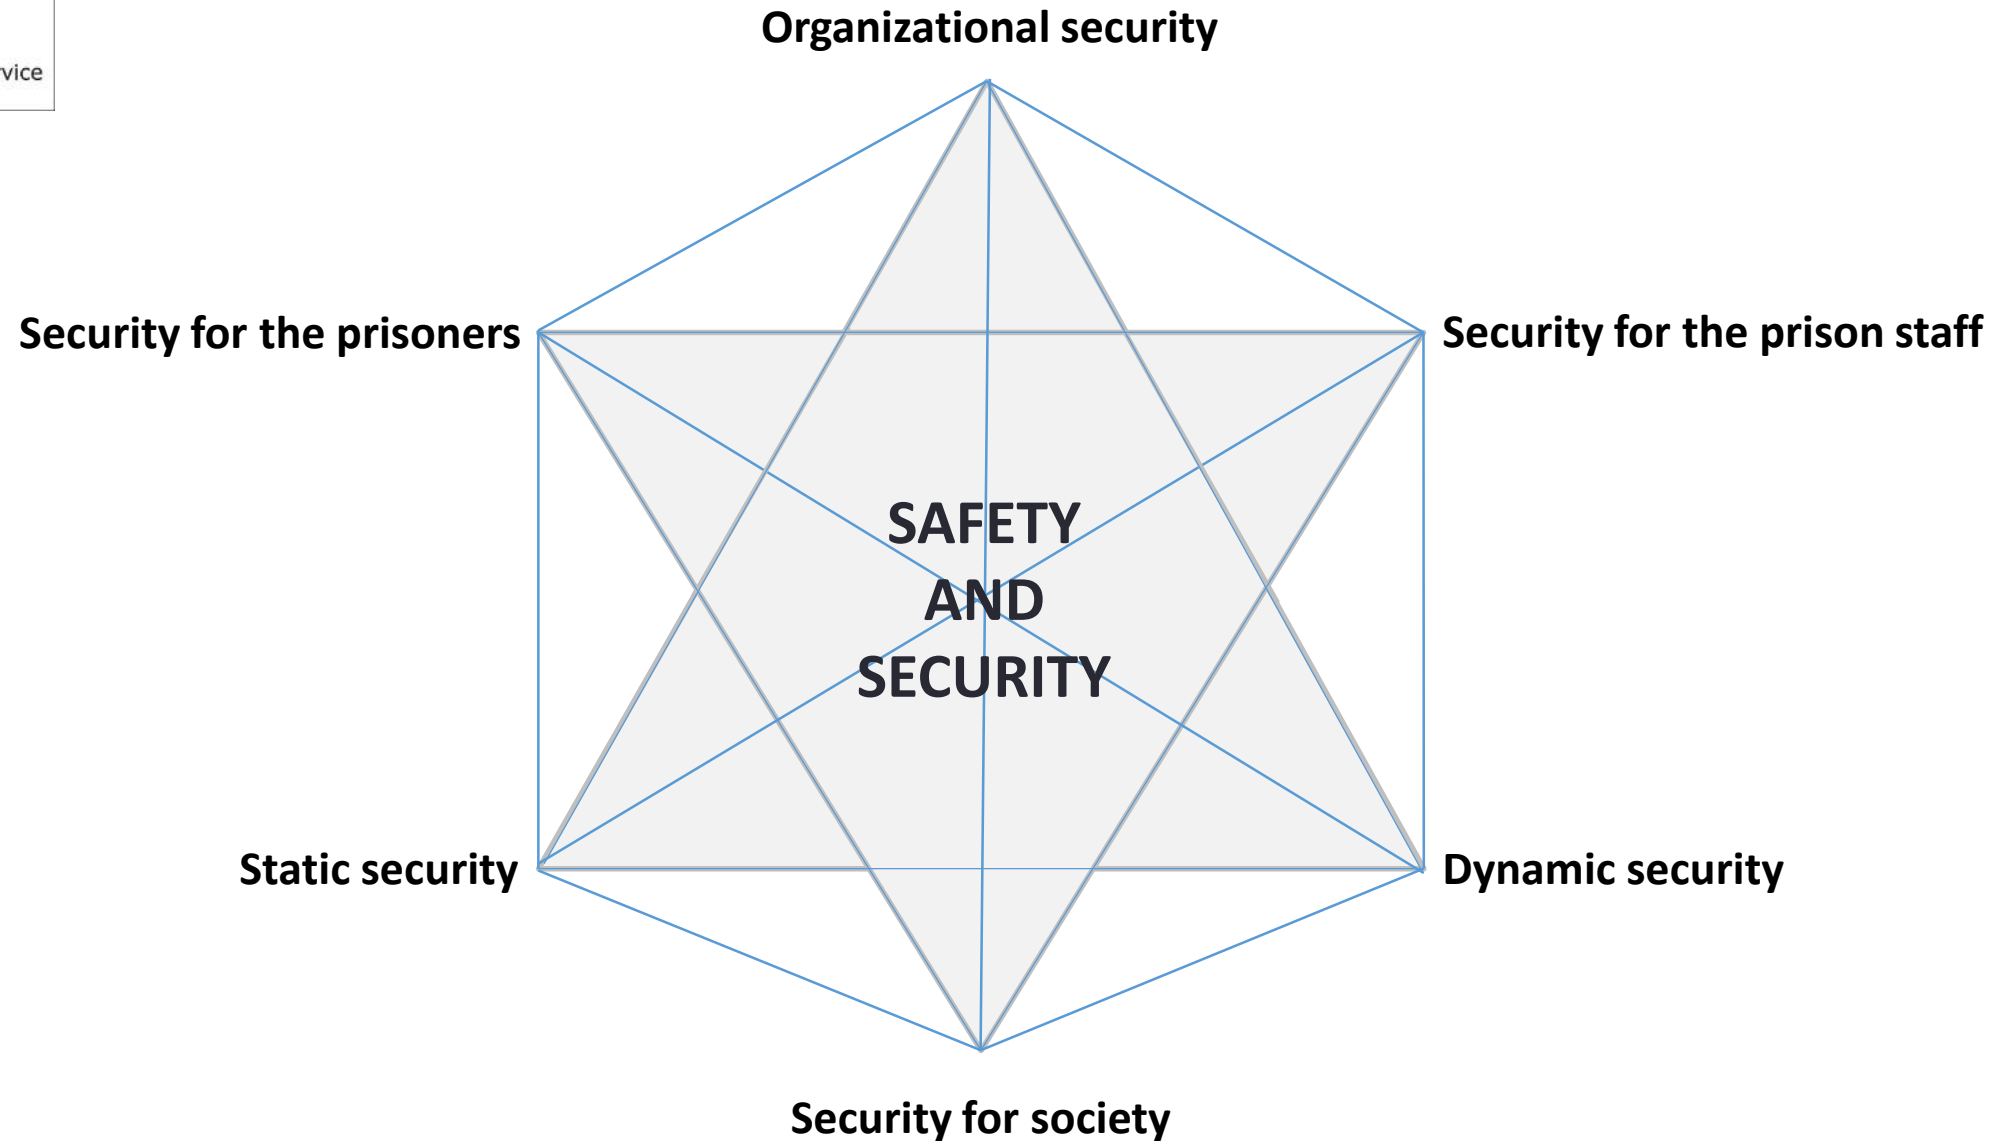

The Independent, Friday 6 august 2010:
Ian Dunbar: Prison governor whose humane values earned him wide respect “Dynamic security , he argued, was found “when relationship and individualism come together in planned and purposeful activity, whether in a high or low security setting, the result is a relaxed and better ordered prison”.

AN HOLISTIC APPROACH TO DYNAMIC SECURITY

Dynamic security – A concept and a working method

Preventive security measure	Conflict management measure	Rehabilitation measure
European prison rules no. 51.2 <ul style="list-style-type: none">• An alert staff who have an awareness of what is going on in the prison, who know and interact with the prisoners who are under their control and make sure that prisoners are kept active in a positive way.• The strengt of dynamic security is that it is likely to be proactive in a way which recognises a threat at a very early stage.	European prison rules no. 64 <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Good professional relationships between staff and prisoners are an essential element of dynamic security in de-escalating potential incidents or in restoring good order through a process of dialogue and negotiation.• Only when these methods fail or are considered inappropriate should physical methods of restoring order be considered.	European prison rules no. 72.3 cf. 75 <ul style="list-style-type: none">• The duties of staff go beyond those required of mere guards and shall take account of the need to facilitate the reintegration of prisoners into society after their sentence has been completed through a programme of positive care and assistance• Staff shall therefore at all times conduct themselves and perform their duties in such a manner as to influence the prisoners by good example (...). European rules for juvenile offenders, § 88 <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Staff shall develop a dynamic approach to safety and security which builds on positive relationships with the prisoners.• A friendly and safe institutional environment plays an important role as it contributes to the overall aim of education and promotes their re-integration into society.
